Time Started: 3:00pm

Mind+Space webinar for this April was hosted by UAP QC South Triangle along with the UAP Chapters of District A3. This episode presents “Environmental Psychology: A Multi-Disciplinary Approach to Design that promotes Psychological well-being” by Environmental Psychologist Carlotta Zanoli. The event gathered over 90 participants of UAP and UAPGA members. The event may be applied as a self-directed CPD event.

The speaker, Carlotta Zanoli, shared with UAP her studies on how our built environment dictates human behavior and well-being. She discussed the importance of biophilia and the different elements of environmental psychology. Zanoli also shared the positive impacts in stress reduction, cognitive performance, and emotion and preference. Watch full video on the link below.

This event was sponsored by Boysen The No. Paint and Queensway Builder and Supply.

FROM BIOPHILIA TO BIOPHILIC DESIGN

The application of biophilia to shape the built environment is due to Stephen R. Kellert (Kellert and Wilson, 1995).

The effects of biophilia come from proximity and contact with the natural world or a representation of it.

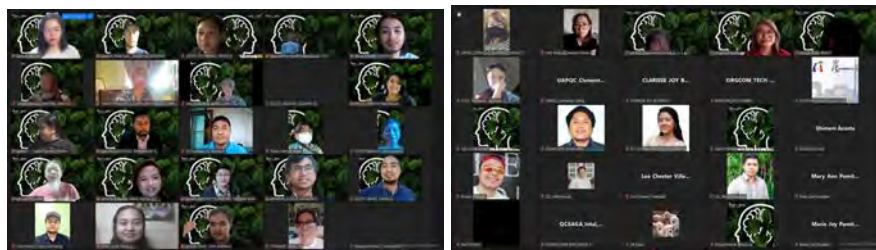

Positive physiological effect measurable by medical sensors: e.g. correlation between lower cortisol production and exposure to natural environments.

Roger Ulrich: exposure to a biophilic environment helps accelerate post-operative processes.

Facilitated by Chapter's Emergency Arch. Mitch Bersamin, Arkitektulong: Let's help rebuild Siargao had its turnover ceremony in Siargao at March 30, 2022. UAP Member Arch. Tamara Juco was awarded a certificate for spearheading the UAP QC STC Arkitektulong CSR project. The initiative was able to collect and donate Php 100,120.00 to be used as payment for materials needed in the area.

Typhoon Odette left devastating damage and killed hundreds of lives in the affected provinces in Visayas and Mindanao. The Board called on UAP QCSTC members and colleagues to a fundraising event that gathered Monetary donations for the procurement of materials to be shipped to Siargao Island. The distribution of procured materials was delivered last March 28, 2022.
